Advanced Retinal Health Care at BCEC

High-Definition Retinal Photography:

High-Def Retinal Photography is an essential part of eye health care. These full-color images allow your eye doctor to view large fields of your retina at one time, much more than can be seen using traditional exam methods.

These photos are also permanent records of your eye health. Year to year, your eye doctor can do side by side comparisons making it significantly easier to spot even subtle changes that take place. These photos can also be sent to other physicians in the event you ever require co-managed care or if you move and transfer your eye health care.

While retinal photography and dilation are not interchangeable, sometimes your eye doctors is able to adequately assess your retinal health using a digital retinal exam. Taking into consideration factors such as age and medical health, your eye doctor may forego dilation with a quality retinal photo interpretation & report for a healthy individual.

Especially Important for people with:

- Diabetes
- High Blood Pressure
- Family History of Eye Disease
- Eye Pain
- Headaches
- High Prescription
- Other Eye Health Problems

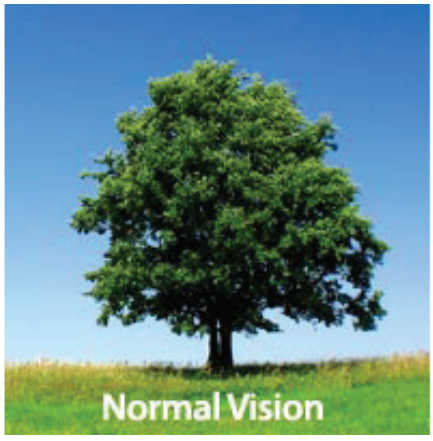
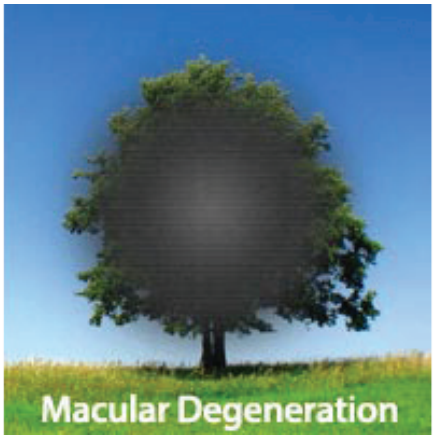
Additionally, it's recommended that all kids under 18 receive digital retinal photos annually.

MPOD TESTING:

Macular Degeneration is the leading cause of vision loss and blindness in adults. It's effects can be permanent and irreversible. Early detection and action are critical in prevention and slowing progression of the disease. Macular Pigment Optical Density (MPOD) testing is a tool that can be used to measure levels of protective pigments inside of your retina that are known to fend off Macular Degeneration.

Your eye doctor can use the information from your MPOD test to gauge your overall macular health as well as to prescribe appropriate methods of prevention and treatment.





Key Macular Degeneration Risk Factors:

- Family History
- Smoker
- Diabetes
- Heart Disease
- Light Colored Eyes
- Light Colored Skin
- Cataracts / Cataract Surgery
- Age over 50
- Diet low in fish, fruits and vegetables

Your Retinal Health:

Your retina is a dynamic and complex tissue that lines the inside of your eyes. It is a key component in both vision and in your overall eye health. A comprehensive eye health exam should always include an in-depth retinal analysis. The eye care physicians at Blount County Eye Center utilize several technologies which allow them to better analyze current retinal health as well as possibly prevent future retinal disease progression. They believe so strongly in these tests that they order them for all patients seen at BCEC for comprehensive eye health exams.

Most major medical insurance and vision benefit plans deem this testing as “elective” and therefore do not cover the fees for the physician’s interpretation and reporting. However, all of the physicians at BCEC strongly encourage thier patients to be informed and proactive with their eye health by choosing to review these tests with your doctor today.
